ABOUT THE PROJECT

This media literacy initiative was implemented by TechSoup Europe and its Partners in 14 countries within the CEE region. The project aims to restore faith in democratic values by supporting civil society organizations in gaining knowledge and new digital skills to bolster resilient communities, as well as strengthening their sense of civic responsibility, solidarity, and community. This initiative supported CSOs in making changes to ways, in which information and communications technology is being used in their respective communities, in understanding how online content is consumed. It also aimed to garner new skills that reinforce digital resilience.

During the period between December 2018 and March 2021, 16 Subject Matter Trainings, 5 Community Building Events and 121 online trainings were carried out, supported by Hive Mind (www.hive-mind.community) — a cutting-edge online harbor for a broader, international Community of Practice, offering the space and various online resources, including self-paced e-courses. The above-mentioned initiatives focused on providing support to activists, leaders of local communities, as well as to non-governmental organizations, journalists, educators, senior citizens, librarians, and young people.
